DR. D. T. MAC DOUGAL'S STATEMENT ON RAINFALL

Carmel's internationally-renowned botanist, Dr. D. T. Mac Dougal of the Highlands, has given The SPECTATOR the following statement on rainfall in this area. Dr. MacDougal is one of eight American members of The Foundation for the Study of Cycles, with headquarters in Riverside, Conn., and which also includes C. G. Abbot of the Smithsonian Institution, Director Harlow Shapley of the Harvard Observatory, and Britain's Julian Huxley:

FORTY-TWO YEARS OF UNUSUAL WEATHER

The average yearly rainfall for the Carmel Highlands for the 15 years ending this July first is 22.26 inches. However, only 17.37 were measured for the yearly season ending on this date, while for the season ending in 1947 the amount was 13.99 inches; 1948, 18.24 inches; 1949, 17.99 inches; and 1950, 15.92. In this five-year period, therefore, a total deficit of more than 27 inches has been experienced.

These stark figures are of great interest to those of us who are engaged in studies leading to definition of cycles of the sun's varying activities with resultant changes in the circulation and electronic condition of the atmosphere. Nevertheless, the seasonal distribution of rainfall is of as great basic importance in the maintenance of water supply in the soil, irrigation of crops, maintenance of grazing conditions and meeting domestic needs.

Thus in the season just closed rains began early with benefit to the ranges while low temperatures and fogs prevented excessive evaporation in the lowlands. During the same period occasional rains melted snows in the mountains cancelling supplies usually stored until spring and summer. Without further description it is obvious that any pattern of the weather is complicated in its effects; furthermore the average rainfall of any spot changes from year to year with the extension of the record.

My instrumental records at Carmel and the Highlands show no repetition of the continually changing average rainfall nor do they include any information which justifies the glib and harried forecasters in use of the terms "normal rainfall," "normal temperature" and "normal weather."

CLOSING THE CARMEL POST OFFICE SAFE for the last time as postmaster, Ernest O. Bixler (right) turns over the combination to newly appointed Acting Postmaster Alfred M. Mollner as the latter assumed his duties officially last Monday.

Mr. Mollner told THE SPECTATOR: "I hope to continue the fine service given by Mr. Bixler and the post office personnel. We're all here to work for Carmel."

Mollner takes over an organization which since its last change of postmasters has increased its postal receipts three times over, and has been raised from a second class to first class post office. When Bixler took charge in 1940 it was located on the corner of Ocean and Mission, but was moved to its present location, over twice as large, to allow for its rapid expansion. Now a new and larger post office building is under construction at 5th and Dolores Streets. Mollner will also start in at an increased salary of $4970 yearly against Bixler's starting salary of $3000.

The new acting postmaster has been in civil service work since 1941, most recently as chief examiner for the Monterey area housing expediter's office. He was born in Copenhagen, Denmark, 54 years ago, but claims to be a "naturalized Californian," having lived in this state 22 years. He came to Carmel 11 years ago with Mrs. Mollner and their son, Gordon. Gordon, one of the first Carmel young men to enlist in World War II, was severely injured in service and spent two and a half years in Navy hospitals. He is now at Point Mague with the Navy's Flying Missle experimental program.

Mollner is a graduate of Copenhagen University with a Ph.D. degree in political and economic science, and did post-graduate work at Oxford University. He was accepted into Kronboerge, the West Point of Denmark, and spent World War I on North Sea patrol as a Royal Guard.

He came to America, he says, because it seemed to him to offer the best chances of world peace and freedom, typified at that time by Woodrow Wilson's ideals. After continuing study at leading universities in the United States, he entered the building and construction field, becoming school construction engineer for California, and building more than 50 state schools.

Bixler is retiring to devote full time to his contracting business.

"I'm leaving with considerable regret in breaking the agreeable association I've enjoyed with the personnel of the post office," he stated. "I'm rather sorry not to be going into the new building--with its private office and all," he added, indicating ruefully the lack of postmaster's privacy in the present building. Bixler went on to state confidence that the new acting postmaster would enjoy the same cooperation of post office employees that had been given him. He also had a strong plug for the postal department in Washington, D.C., describing it as one agency which continually strives for greater efficiency and better service, and which cooperates fully with its lower echelons.

Words of the Wise

If I knew a miser, who gave up every kind of comfortable living, all the pleasure of doing good to others, all the esteem of his fellow-citizens, and the joy of benevolent friendship, for the sake of accumulating wealth, Poor man, said I, you pay too much for your whistle.

"Apple Of His Eye"—Fine Cast, Slick Performance at C.V. Barn Theater

A fine, sharply etched play has been turned out by Forrest Barnes who directs and acts the leading part of "Apple of His Eye," two-act comedy drama which opened at the Carmel Valley Barn Theater, July 4. It is the second production of the brand new Valley theater, whose presentations are held in the picturesque barn showhouse.

Despite a short 3-week rehearsal period, the cast and its director polished this amusing yet sensitive story to a high lustre. Forrest Barnes, as the elderly Indiana farmer who falls in love with the very young neighbor girl, gives this part, which was Walter Houston's in the Broadway production, a sincere, warm, and whimsically touching interpretation, never letting the potentially ludicrous situation become precisely that--even when he sprains his back wrestling a sideshow carnie to prove his youthful strength. The audience actually sighs aloud, "Oh, it's a ring!" when "Sam," the farmer, shows it furtively to "Tude," the sympathetic hired man, played most excellently and realistically by Walter Branson.

Lovely Dee Sharpe as "Lily" gives a fine sensitive portrayal of a young girl whose innate dignity, honor, and early maturity help rescue this May-December romance from the ridiculous and turn it into a strong audience appeal. Of course there are the jealous, insecure relatives and gain-seekers who want to inherit the farm, and are resentful of Lilly. Ester Fleharty, in the gaunt, embittered character of "Nettie," the long-time housekeeper, is as bleak and barren as a dust bowl; Patty Trevitt as Sam's daughter-in-law is malevolent and vituperative as only a fearful, self-seeking woman can be; Peg Minor as the third female terror does a superb job as the nosey neighborhood troublemaker; and little Anne Berger as the spoiled brat is simply the kind you want to paddle.

Charlie Killian's character performance as the girl's tobacco-road

HONORED ON 40TH ANNIVERSARY

More than 100 Catholic priests of the diocese, as well as high church dignitaries, gathered in Carmel Monday to honor the 40th anniversary of priesthood of the Most Rev. Aloysius J. Willinger, C.S.S.R., D.D., Bishop of the Monterey-Fresno Diocese of the Catholic Church.

Among visitors were Bishop William O'Brien, Chicago, head of the Catholic Extension Society. Rev. Michael D. O'Connell, pastor of Old Carmel Mission Church, was host.

The anniversary services began with celebration of a solemn pontifical Mass in the historic old Carmel Mission, at which Bishop Willinger pontificated.

In the services, the Bishop used the identical chalice which Fr. Junipero Serra, founder of the chain of 21 California missions, used nearly two centuries ago in the same church, under whose altar F. Serra's remains are buried. Many of the old church vestments were also used.

The Holy See transferred Bishop Willinger to the Monterey-Fresno Diocese where he was formally installed in St. John's Cathedral, Fresno, February 27, 1947.

REHEARSALS NEXT WEEK FOR BACH FESTIVAL OPENING JULY 16

Carmel's Fourteenth Annual Bach Festival opens a week from Monday, July 16, the heralding trombones sounding the first note of the Festival at 8 o'clock in the evening. Next Sunday and Monday will see Festival participants arriving by every train and bus, with others coming in by plane and car. Chorus and orchestra will be rehearsing daily all next week. Rehearsals are strictly closed to all except participants.

Gastone Usigli, conductor, drives down from San Francisco Monday morning with Ervin Mautner, concert master.

Final program changes and rearrangements are being made by Mr. Usigli in conference with Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous, producing managers. Meanwhile out-of-town reservations are pouring in from all directions, with telegrams and long distance calls about the Festival keeping the box office busy every moment. The new Festival Headquarters, located in the Graham Music Store on Mission and Sixth, is proving to be most satisfactory, the Festival Management announced.

NEW ACCESS READIED FOR HIGHLANDS BEACH

An unusual story of the personal initiative and persistence of one man benefiting many persons was unfolding in Carmel Highlands this week where work was nearing completion on an access, with stairs and railing, to the Yankee Point Cove Beach -- bringing to fruition the patient efforts of Bishop Winfred H. Ziegler (ret.), president of the Carmel Highlands Association.

Shortly after coming to Carmel four years ago, upon retiring as Episcopal Bishop of Wyoming, Bishop Ziegler noted the potentialities of the beach and the benefits residents of the area would gain from an access. This involved a practical easement, a parking area, and rebuilding of the stairway down the rocks to the beach.

At a recent meeting of the Carmel Highlands Association, after much of the legal groundwork had been done, President Ziegler appointed a Beach Committee comprised of Mr. Malcolm Millard, chairman, Mr. Richard Blaney, and Mr. R. K. Spiking and authorized it to seek an improved access to the spot. Bishop Ziegler pointed out that Mr. Charles Sawyer of the Yankee Point Acres project (Carmel Riviera) had consented to the use by Highlands Association members of the Riviera Road, circle and parking place at the head of the stairs to the beach.

The Committee engaged Building Contractor Francis Duveneck to rebuild the stairs and add a proper railing down the rocks. With the help of an electric hammer to anchor the railing, new planks and cement for the last few steps, workmen were completing this week a stairway which the Bishop said "will be easy and safe for children and parents, grandparents and friends."

Financing of the several-hundred-dollar project was made possible by voluntary contributions from Highlands Association members. But Bishop Ziegler pointed out this aspect of the matter is not yet finished since funds are still being solicited for various accessories such as proper signs, trash disposal units, paint, etc.

However, what had started as the dream of a distinguished retired clergyman from Wyoming was already at the point where hundreds of persons could see and enjoy additional beauties of California's coastlands.

Ziegler, president of the Carmel Highlands Association, looks on, while work neared completion this week on a new access to the Yankee Point Cove Beach for Highlands residents. —Eugene Wilkinson, of Bise & Tippit, Selma

"Your gas and electric rates are lower than in 1940... no wonder you use so many appliances!"

Your P. G. and E. household rates are lower today than in 1940. The reason is simple: the average customer uses about twice the gas and electricity he did in 1940. That larger use helps cut delivery costs. Moreover, skilled employees and careful management work together to improve efficiency. The results are passed on to you in the form of low rates. We don't think these low rates are the only reason you buy so many appliances. But we do think they help you enjoy them more.

"We moved into our new home last year. I think we have about every modern appliance it takes to make living easier and more fun. My hobby is my workshop, power equipped. Yet electricity accounts for only 1% or 2% of our family expenses!"

FOREST THEATER GUILD NEW PRODUCTION TO OPEN AUG. 3

THE FOREST THEATER GUILD will present, on August 3, one of its most ambitious productions to date: the 2500 year old comedy, "Lysistrata," by Aristophanes. To give this famous play a setting worthy of its honorable history, the Guild announced a set representing a market place before the Acropolis, with the towering fortress rising 30 feet into the air, is being built.

To put this show together the Guild has called upon some of the finest talent of the Peninsula: for the set and costume designing the imagination of Erica Franke; for the choreography Joanne Nix; for the technical direction Elizabeth Fogel, and for the cast Ruth McElroy, Flavia Flavin, Betty Fowlston, Karen Williams, and many others whose performing abilities have won them acclaim in many dramatic parts. Forrest Barnes acts as director of the show, and James B. Campbell as producer.

ANOTHER ETHEL WARREN, INTERIORS Shop was opened this week with the debut of this Carmel branch of her establishment in in May Court. (Photo by GEORGE T. C. SMITH)

Commissions to design interiors for several Peninsula and Salinas homes brought Mrs. Ethel Warren to Carmel recently. Carmel's charm persuaded her to open another branch of her interior decorating business while she was here. So, this week another Ethel Warren, Interiors, Shop opened in Carmel's May Court.

Starting as a student of architecture and fine arts in college, Mrs. Warren has specialized in remodeling and decorating homes and opened her first shop in Fresno over 18 years ago. There is now a branch in Palm Springs as well as Carmel.

It is interesting that Mrs. Warren not only designs living space, but manufactures nearly every article necessary for making the house a home. Her Fresno business includes an upholstery shop, curtain shop, shop for making lamp shades, and complete furniture shop, all of which carry out her original schemes. She is an enthusiastic collector of art and antiques, as may be seen by visiting her new shop. One of her interesting personal possessions is an original charcoal nude by Whistler, now on display there.

STATE PARKS, MONUMENTS DRAW LARGE THRONGS

Five Monterey County points of interest owned and operated by the State drew a total of 418,316 visitors in 1950, according to data announced by the State.

Pfeiffer-Big Sur State Park, about 35 miles south of Carmel on Highway 1, ranked first in drawing power among the State monuments and parks with 180,465 visitors. Point Lobos Reserve, three miles south of Carmel, was second with 89,454, while the old Custom House at the head of Fisherman's Wharf was third, drawing 79,621 persons.

DENNY - WATROUS 'UNCLE TOM'S CABIN' GAINS ACCLAIM

They say you can't make a bad cup of a certain kind of coffee. Perhaps it could be claimed also that it would be difficult to make a poor production of a perennial stage favorite. Anyhow, the Troupers of the Gold Coast have worked hard and pleasingly on a sure thing.

This famous hit is "Uncle Tom's Cabin," a deathless tale which has been in circulation a mere 99 years. And almost as far back as 1852, when Harriet Beecher Stowe brought it forth as an ante-bellum novel, it has appeared and re-appeared on the American stage as one of the mellowest of melodramas.

The troupers over at California's First Theater in Monterey have just embarked on a summer run of the old favorite. There is already much evidence of success in this Denny-Watrous Management venture not only because of its innate popularity, but also because of some likeable home-grown embellishments. And--plenty of people are seeing and enjoying a tear-jerker that is good to the last drop.

As the lead, Bert Sharpe makes himself the real old Tom. He has put himself so completely into the role that he stays in character for some of the olio, too. Cecil Haskell, as Simon Legree, is as convincing as the slavemaster's bullwhip.

Topsy and Eva, like Uncle Tom himself, are inevitably popular, but the juveniles in these roles, Virginia Chambers and Linda Pollard, could win that adjective on their own. Alex Olivetti, as St. Clare, also as emcee of the olio, and Paul Vornholt, not to overlook Gloria Rollin as Miss Ophelia, put into their parts the very sort of stuff that makes for plenty of curtain calls. And that goes for the capable supporting cast, too.

An admirable directing job was performed by Rhea Diveley. One thing more: We'd like to tell you how Katy Brania, as a very commendable Eliza, makes the famous crossing of the ice. On second thought, you'll just have to see for yourself!

-- ARTHUR McEWEN

(Upper left) IF THIS WERE A SOUND PICTURE, you'd hear the whistle of Simon Legree's bullwhip on poor old Uncle Tom's back resound in sympathetic hisses from the First Theater audience. Yes, the cruelty of it all is touching. "Why, you can feel it!"

(Lower left) "OH SUZANNAH!" in the First Theater olio finds this trio getting so far into a "sleepy South" mood that they doze as they sing. Don Stalter, his sister Donna, and Naomi Whitaker are responsible for this lull in the lullaby.

HEAD BARN THEATER CAST (Photograph by STEVE CROUCH).

Dee Sharpe, female lead in the new Barn Theater production, "Apple of His Eye," got her dramatic start as a child in the now extinct Children's Little Theater Center in Carmel. Local residents who remember the presentations of "Alice in Wonderland" and "Everyman" put on by that group will recall the diminutive daughter of Bert Sharpe (himself a talented amateur actor).

Now a sophomore at Occidental College and a head or so taller than she was, Miss Sharpe has acquired the poise and stage presence of a much older and more experienced actress. Parts in such college productions as "Beautiful People," "Androcles and the Lion," and "The Trojan Women," plus roles in the Forest Theater Guild's "Stage Door," "The Little Foxes," and "The Corn is Green," and in the Wharf Players' "Outward Bound," have all contributed to her expert handling of her current dramatic assignment.

At Occidental, Dee received the college "Oscar" for technical stage work after stage managing "Merchant of Yonkers." She is a member of the "Oxy" Players and Zeta Phi Eta, speech fraternity.

In "Apple of His Eye," which opened on the Fourth of July in Carmel Valley and will continue this weekend and the two succeeding ones, Dee portrays an 18-year-old girl who unknowingly charms an aging farmer into feeling his oats.

Forrest Barnes, who plays opposite Miss Sharpe, and has directed "Apple of His Eye," does his usual smooth professional job in the part of Sam Stover, the middle-aged Indianan with young ideas, approximating the Broadway performance of the late Walter Huston, for whom the play was originally written. Recently returned from New York, where he did an eight-months' writing and directing television stint, Barnes has plunged a finger into virtually every local dramatic pie and hopes—though Ken Murray is after him for his Broadway show—to remain in Carmel for a while. Peninsula play-goers will recall his masterly handling of roles in "The Little Foxes" and "Arms and the Man."

Barnes and Miss Sharpe are backed up by a cast including such local histrionic veterans as Willard Branson, Esther Fleharty, Charles Kilian, Patty Trevett, and 12-year-old Ann Bergen in "Apple of His Eye." Comparative newcomers are Peg Miner, former Wharf Players' stage manager, and Jack Cooley, a Carmel artist whose first dramatic role was that of "Old Tom" in "Point of Departure."

Setting for the play, a replica of a mid-western farm house, was designed and executed by Tommy Cordrey, constructed by Wes Fleharty.

Signs directing cars off the Carmel Valley highway to Kenn Smith's Barn Theater appear just past Los Laureles Lodge. The theater has comfortable seats, a brand new stage and celotex wall linings.

only 20 minutes up the lovely carmel valley there is a circus every night...at a little roadside tavern called the carousel...where the lights shine brightly until 2 a.m. nightly...where carousel music brings forth dancing and close harmonizing around the piano and novachord of genial maestro bill pierce...and ring master bert dienelt keeps the show moving at a friendly pace...where your imagination is inspired not by the guyascutus but by the most delicious food...at reasonable prices...and by the side show put on at the bar by ramon-the-famous-mixcologist... you will find the carousel itself as cute as a pair of spangled tights ...with a large patio where there is a regular saturday night barbecue...and which on any night but saturday you may reserve for your private patio barbecue or party--all the world loves a circus...so whether you're from the peninsula or from one of the 48 states or from south america, follow the music to your carousel dinner every evening... ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S

WHO IS IT?

This week's column guest can be described as one of Carmel's best known exterior decorators. The exteriors she decorates belong to Carmel and Peninsula women, and her business is also her chief hobby on which she spends all but a few waking hours month in and month out. Harriet Duncan has a little motto--a quotation from Sarah Teasdale's "Barter," which she is particularly fond of reciting:

"...Life is made for loveliness--
Spend all you have--and never count the cost..."

That it honestly conveys her feelings about beauty, and yet candidly proposes that beauty is a safe repository for money, is typical of the lady's personality, which combines the artist and the realistic business sense of her Scottish forebears.

No one knowing Miss Duncan today--her chic shop and self--would guess she was an old buddy of "Buffalo Bill" Cody. Of course she was a very small youngster when her father, a Scotch doctor living in McCook, Nebraska, was Buffalo Bill's personal physician. However she remembers his pats on the head and the beautiful Arabian horses he worked in his circus.

A few years later she graduated from Denver College, Denver, Colorado. There she studied fine arts, from which springs her never-ending love of color and form. Few people know too that she studied concert violinistry for 12 years, giving it up to go into business.

While making her break into business she took time out to devote five years to the show world as a dance orchestra blues singer, and later as a radio singer. However, possessing a good business head, she inevitably was drawn back to the fascinating pursuit of merchandising.

Invaluable experience came through 15 years as saleslady, training director, and manager of shops for Van Raalte Co. of New York. She was based mostly in San Francisco, which is how she and her husband, Wesley Zingel, discovered Carmel while on vacation. Some time later, tiring of the city jungle, they moved to Carmel where Miss Duncan opened her shop four years ago last March.

Now a leading Peninsula businesswoman, she can look back with amusement upon what she recalls as her most terrifying experience in business. It was her first job and her first customer. Miss Duncan, very young and upset to begin with, faced a huge butcher with white apron and gruff voice who came up to her notions counter and demanded a needle. She was so terrified she couldn't think and simply couldn't find what he wanted. The butcher waited for a minute, then in a kinder voice said: "Don't be nervous, little girl. All I want is a needle."

JULY 11 CARD PARTY TO BENEFIT PENINSULA PETS

Make a date for cards on Wednesday afternoon, July 11, 2 to 4, in the "lovely room with a view" at La Playa Hotel for the benefit of Peninsula Pets animal welfare project, Carmel residents were urged this week.

Bess Prewett is putting on an expansion program for Peninsula Pets in the form of a shelter and enlargement of the Shop on Lincoln Street, opposite the Church of the Wayfarer. Carpenters and brick workers are expensive these days, she pointed out, and money is needed for carrying on. Come and spend a pleasant afternoon at the La Playa, she urged, with cards, refreshments, and many attractive door prizes.

WORLD AFFAIRS COUNCIL NOTES PROGRESS

Committee reports on progress to date of the Peninsula World Affairs Council were considered at a recent meeting of the group's board of directors held at the Carmel High School library under the chairmanship of Adm. Raymond A. Spruance (USN ret.) Council president.

Reporting on membership in the World Affairs Council, Mrs. Frank Ringland announced a total of 77 members to date, representing a steady increase in recent weeks.

Dr. Remsen Bird, reporting for the council's study groups, told of enthusiastic attendance during the past months at seminars on Southeast Asia, led by Stanley Pedder; on the Balkans, led by Mrs. W. A. Angwin, on China, under the leadership of Dr. H. S. Houghton; and his own on Iran. A questionnaire has been prepared for circulation among the full World Affairs Council membership, seeking information on preferences as to seminar subjects for next fall.

Membership in the study groups, while limited to around 30, is not restricted to paid members of the World Affairs Council, but open to all Peninsula residents eager to increase their knowledge of world conditions.

"APPLE OF HIS EYE"

type father is gently comical and very good; and Jack Cooley, a newcomer to Peninsula theater, fitted in a totally believable farm-boy characterization as the farmer's bewildered but sympathetic son.

All in all, the play was fine entertainment, excellent craftsmanship, and it is hard to imagine a better cast even on Broadway. Authentic farmhouse interior sets by Tommy Cordrey were the best we have seen in summer theater and would also have been a credit to the original Broadway production. The play runs through Saturday night, this weekend, and for Fridays and Saturdays of the two succeeding weekends.

An estimated 50% rise in feed costs since the first of the year, current high prices being offered for dairy cattle by meat packing firms, and the increased costs of milk production and distribution forced Monterey and Santa Cruz Counties milk producers and distributors to ask the State Bureau of Milk Control for a milk control hearing this week at the Lodge Room, City Hall, Watsonville.
